PRESBYTERIAN SHARING

October 16 is World Food Day

Across the globe, small-scale farmers are suffering the effects of climate change. Prolonged drought, erratic rainfall and a growing rate of weather related disasters are also taking their toll. In Ethiopia, Meserete Jima's crops were obliterated in the wake of a powerful El Niño phenomenon sweeping southern Africa. "I'm very concerned about my family's future," admits Meserete. In times of disaster, Presbyterian World Service & Development responds with food assistance to sustain families until they can plant again. The rations Meserete received with support from Canadian Foodgrains Bank are vital to her family's well-being. On World Food Day, we reflect on the global struggle against hunger and the need to address climate change to ensure food security for all.

STEWARDSHIP MOMENTS

If you want to know how rich you really are, find out what would be left of you tomorrow if you should lose every dollar you own tonight.

William J.H. Boetcker (1873-1962), minister and motivational speaker

From Rev. Joyce,

Last weekend Ken and I took a timeout from our regular activities and went to Grand Marais overnight on Sunday. We couldn't have asked for better weekend weather, which I know was enjoyed in Thunder Bay as well. I had booked a room on the shore of Lake Superior. Now I can't remember ever staying by a lake shore that was so insistent. The waves rolled in and out the entire time. When I awakened periodically through the night I listened for the rhythmic washing of the waves on the shoreline. On Monday our daughter had booked a massage for us. That business was on the shoreline. We then walked to the light house watching the waves beat against the rocks over and over again. We even ate our dinner that evening outside on a balcony near the shoreline.

The entire time I was soothed, intrigued, and called by the waves coming up on the shore with the sound of a rush, then subsiding, only to come back again and again. Now for those of you who have experienced Lake Superior all your life this may not seem like anything. It is just the rhythm of life you know. But for me it was magic. As I am wont to do, I wondered what God was saying to me in this, saying to everyone who cared to listen. The words I heard back were, "I am consistent, I am insistent, I am not always calm, but I bring calm by my steadfastness. You can trust that I am always there, just watch, listen, and take me in." There is something about listening to God speak in nature. As the fall continues, leaves change color, gardens are prepared, and the wind blows, I encourage you to stop, even for a moment, and let God speak to you through the work of creation. God is present in it all.
